

Caroline Noeding is Miss Condor 2013

Passengers have chosen Miss Lower Saxony to be Miss Condor

Frankfurt/Fuerteventura, February 05, 2013 – Caroline Noeding was voted Miss Condor 2013 by the passengers on board of today's Condor flight DE2418 from Frankfurt to Fuerteventura. The aisle of the Boeing 757-300 on this beauty queen flight turned into a catwalk, negotiated twice by each of the contestants. Caroline Noeding the reigning Miss Lower Saxony, came out on top. She beat off the challenge of the other candidates taking part in the Miss Germany pageant.

"Winning over an audience on board an aircraft is a special type of challenge, but our beauty queens were brilliant", smiles Uwe Klenovsky, Sales Manager at Condor. "At the same time, our passengers were enjoying some unique on-board entertainment. We wish Miss Condor every success at the Miss Germany camp and in the finals on February 23 at the Europa Park in Rust."

The 16 beauty queens representing the federal states were joined by eight other beauty queens in the Miss Condor 2013 contest: Miss North Germany, Miss Central Germany, Miss East Germany, Miss South-West Germany, Miss West Germany, Miss South Germany, Miss Ashampoo and Miss Internet are also in the running to become Miss Germany 2013. They are all on their way to the Hotel Aldiana on Fuerteventura, where they will be taking part in various photo shoots and workshops in preparation for the Miss Germany pageant. Professional boxer Arthur Abraham will keep the beauty queens on their toes with fitness training, Dr Maik Irmisch will provide health and nutrition advice, Ines Kuba will advise the candidates on deportment and etiquette and linergist Carmen Perthold will offer helpful tips for make-up and styling.

On February 14, the finalists will fly back to Germany and in the final week, at the Europa Park in Rust, further training and rehearsals will get them in the right mood for the Miss Germany pageant. The grand final takes place on February 23, 2013, at the Europa Park Dome in Rust.
