

Condor further expands route network:
Seattle available from summer 2011

Two non-stop flights every week to America's Pacific Coast from June 2011

Kelsterbach, 1 December 2010 – From June 2011, Condor will fly every Monday and Thursday non-stop from Frankfurt to Seattle (Washington, USA). After Calgary, Recife and Split, this is the airline's fourth new destination set to be available from summer 2011. Seattle-Tacoma International Airport is a hub for Condor cooperation partner Alaska Airlines.

"We are always on the lookout for new, exciting destinations for our passengers. Seattle is the latest addition to Condor's expanding route network", explains Achim Lameyer, Vice President Passenger Sales at Condor. "Seattle offers a wide range of activities for visitors both in the nearby countryside and in the city itself. And thanks to our partner Alaska Airlines, passengers can connect with flights to numerous cities on the American West Coast and around the Pacific region."

The lush forests nearby have earned Seattle the nickname of the "Emerald City". Located at the foot of the snow-covered Cascade Range, the city is ideal as a base for hiking and mountaineering expeditions into the Mount Rainier National Park, with its old-growth forests, hot springs and the famous Narada Falls. Seattle is interspersed with lakes and rivers, and within easy reach of the American Pacific Coast – good news for enthusiasts of sailing, rafting and other water sports. And with numerous museums and theatres and the famous Seattle Symphony Orchestra and Pacific Northwest Ballet, Seattle is well justified in its claims of being a cultural centre for the Northwestern USA. The diverse nightlife that can be enjoyed around the university city's many quarters has produced such greats as rock legend Jimi Hendrix and the band Nirvana. And last but not least, Seattle is also a popular starting point for cruises to Alaska.
